With the rapid spread of Internet information, we can often see the unexpected events of students in colleges and universities. The factors that produce the unexpected events are very diverse, and the final cause of the unexpected events is only the fuse, because many internal factors and external factors of the students have an internal psychological impact, it is very difficult to be observed, foreseen, Therefore, the unexpected events of college students often show great chance and sudden, and with the network and other channels of public opinion will make the events spread quickly and may change the truth, these characteristics will have a great negative impact on the students, their families, their relatives and friends, their classmates and schools. Ideological and political work to prevent and deal with emergencies, needs to integrate ideological work and the responsibility of running schools in colleges and universities, generally and uniformly carry out the relevant ideological and legal work, will be difficult and complex problems in accordance with the principle of unity and flexibility to solve reasonably, but the actual ideological and legal work in education speed, breadth, depth, reliability and other aspects of great challenges. With the expansion of enrollment in colleges and universities in recent years, the number of students has increased significantly, the quality of good and bad intermingled, increased the frequency of student emergencies in colleges and universities, in recent years related events emerge in endlessly, Internet public opinion has also increased the negative impact of emergencies. Therefore, in the new period of college enrollment expansion and Internet popularization, colleges and universities should do a good job of ideological and legal education in an all-round and in-depth manner, effectively prevent and deal with student emergencies, and guide students to develop healthily.

1. The significance and necessity of ideological rule of law education for college students to deal with emergencies

(1) The status of ideological and political work in education determines that it will have a greater impact on emergencies, so it is necessary to strengthen ideological and political education on the rule of law and better avoid and deal with student emergencies. The ideological law only inherits our country history culture, the party spirit and the rule of law idea, It is the knowledge that people must understand in modern society. From the political, social and cultural aspects, ideological and political education is very important. Therefore, it is an important link to promote the all-round development of students to persist in carrying out the ideological and legal education and improving its quality. This is more prominent for the cultivation of students' moral character and the concept of rule of law, Therefore, in order to deal with emergencies, we need to strengthen ideological and legal education.

(2) The nature and characteristics of unexpected events in colleges and universities make it necessary to carry out ideological and legal education. Emergencies are very urgent and uncertain in nature, and also have extremely fast propagation speed and destructive. Ideological education of rule of law is conducive to the construction of a harmonious and rule of law campus environment, so it is helpful to avoid unexpected events, after the emergency, may have a bad impact, such as the dissemination of false information, will have a serious impact on the parties, schools, therefore, we need to carry out ideological and political rule of law education in a keen and timely manner.

(3) As a place for personnel training, colleges and universities also have the responsibility to prevent and solve student emergencies by means of education on the rule of law. The task of running a university, dealing with the cultivation of students' professional knowledge, professional skills, but also need to cultivate college students to form a good three-view, cognitive ability and sound personality, psychology.

2. The nature of emergencies of college students

2.1 Sudden

In the information society, the information accepted by students is more hidden and diverse, and the overall quality of college students is also higher, so students have unexpected events, rarely should be a sudden conflict or bad emotion, but a certain event or emotion has accumulated too much. Compared with the traditional media, the network media has a faster influence and shorter accumulation process, so it often occurs very unexpected and unexpected emergencies. In addition, there are various ways of network communication, unexpected events will cause high public opinion attention in a very short period of time, there will be a lot of false reports and malicious remarks by the way, the network audience is difficult to identify the value of information, authenticity, and easy to be emotional by network information, publish or forward aggressive speech, resulting in colleges and universities difficult to quickly and effectively solve students' emergencies.

2.2 Destructiveness

College students, as the pillar of the future of society, although active thinking, strong learning ability, high quality, but the three views are not mature, at the same time lack of judgment on the problem, the ability to solve, so easy to impulse, more easily cause great destruction, because of some small contradictions. Driven by network information, students are more difficult to control their emotions and can not make rational judgments, so there will be greater damage after emergencies.

2.3 Urgency

In the network age, it will make emergencies more sudden and destructive, so it requires colleges and universities to judge, make decisions and deal with emergencies faster, but the spread of network information will shorten the time of early warning and response to emergencies, so the current university emergencies have a strong urgency.

2.4 Uncertainty

The uncertainty of unexpected events is mainly manifested in the direction of development and the effect of influence. Because such events are difficult to deal with and influenced by public opinion, it is difficult to determine the development direction of events. If the interests of the students or parents concerned can not be answered in a timely and satisfactory manner, it may further intensify their emotions, and public opinion will continue to be longer events, resulting in more unpredictable and difficult to control the development of events. Uncertainty of influence effect, refers to not all emergencies will cause negative, if colleges and universities timely, effective response, control, can better control the scope of the impact of events, on the contrary, with the development of public opinion, the impact of events will be unpredictable.

3. The countermeasures of ideological and rule of law education in colleges and universities to deal with students' emergencies

3.1 With quasi-fast, specimen-cum-cure, to treat emergencies comprehensively

When dealing with students' emergencies, we should first correct the work motivation, guide the purpose, and release the correct information of public opinion guidance. First, we need to seek truth from facts, and then we should seek common ground while reserving differences on non-principles issues, fully care about and respect the students concerned; Secondly, on the basis of comprehensive investigation, we should identify the false and retain the real, go to school and reflect the accurate information of the society. Thirdly, we should find out the contradiction of the incident and deal with the key points clearly. Finally, we should deal with the problem firmly and flexibly, deal with both the symptoms and the root causes, draw clear responsibility for the violation of the law and discipline norms, strictly distinguish and deal with the problems of different nature, take education as the main factor, and punish as a supplement, so as to help students better resolve contradictions and grow up healthily.

3.2 People-oriented, convincing with reason, touching others with love

The ideological education of rule of law is to sort out the work of identification and education transfer, so when dealing with unexpected problems, we should maintain the premise of communication of respect and understanding, and ensure that the students involved have the political and legal status of policy, so as to resolve their psychological obstacles and enhance the effect of persuasion speech and behavior. For students who are too extreme, first of all, we need to be patient, adhere to the educational principle of courtesy and reason to convince people, so as not to calm the incident as soon as possible, engage in power, wear hats, and restrict students' personal freedom.

3.3 Establishment of a working mechanism for rapid and accurate processing

To enhance the timeliness of handling, we should form a perfect, clear division of labor, orderly, clear responsibility, coordination, flexible ideological and political rule of law education management, work mechanism. First of all, improve the early warning mechanism, usually pay attention to students' feedback and bad emotions, behavior, pay more attention to this kind of students, identify, diagnose, predict possible problems, and formulate the corresponding treatment plan, function distribution, work countermeasures.

Secondly, establish the working mechanism of quick response and effective communication. After the occurrence of an emergency, the relevant working group of the school should clearly guide the direction and countermeasures, and then quickly organize the personnel to deal with the incident, control the public opinion, and avoid the occurrence of false statements or lead to the rapid spread of rumors. The personnel should communicate quickly and coordinate with each other through building groups. Finally, we should improve the work of ideological and political rule of law education, in the daily curriculum, more comprehensive guidance to students to develop good behavior and psychology, in addition, we should optimize the management system, evaluation mechanism, incentive measures to solve the ideological education lag, unreasonable management, unfair handling and other issues.

3.4 Build the monitoring system of public opinion, and build a new position of ideological and political rule of law education through network channels

College courses organize ideological and political teachers and excellent students, through forums, QQ groups and other channels, timely collection, monitoring and analysis of relevant events of public opinion information, effective understanding of students' ideological situation and public opinion guidance to emergencies, attach great importance to hot posts, hot comments. On this basis, we should infiltrate ideological and political rule of law education through the Internet, through news posts, scientific analysis and other methods, in the relevant posts, forums to correct false statements, set up a correct, true guidance of public opinion.

4. Conclusion

To sum up, colleges and universities are the gathering place of knowledge youth, and also the sensitive zone that draws social attention. Student emergencies, will have a serious impact on students, colleges and society. Therefore, it is necessary to carry out ideological and rule of law education more effectively, timely and comprehensively according to the various nature of students' emergencies, to better prevent emergencies, to deal with emergencies more correctly and timely, to help students grow up more healthily, and make high-quality talents for the society.
