Foreword

Into the new era, the State Council and the CPC Central Committee jointly issued on strengthening the opinions of college students' ideological and political education and policies, which made it clear that to fully withdraw the political advantages of the communist party of China, organizational advantage, it is necessary to strengthen the ideological and political work, including the student party branch is the most basic organization, therefore, should take novel and effective construction ideas to optimize the student party branch organization, so, not only can achieve ideological and political education work goal, also can improve the grass-roots party organization construction, guarantee course teaching and daily management smoothly.

1. The urgent requirement of the construction of college student Party branch

1.1 The need to improve the party spirit of student Party members

After understanding, some student party members in some student branches have the party membership motivation is not pure enough, the consciousness of serving the people is not active enough, the party members lack of firmness attitude and so on. Investigate its fundamental, because the ideological consciousness is not strong enough, which is mainly manifested in the following points: First, the lack of political literacy. Combined with practical research, many student party members have not formed a firm socialist ideals and beliefs, the understanding of the socialist system is not deep enough, the understanding is not comprehensive enough, and ultimately make their decision on the deployment of the higher party organization effect is not good, do not fully compare the obligations of party members to practice the standard requirements of qualified party members. Second, the lack of a theoretical basis. Many students party members in the marxist theory class did not invest plenty of time and energy, the marxism theory research is not deep, learn not thoroughly, the party constitution learning consciousness is not consciously, eventually with the new era of socialism with Chinese characteristics to arm their own mind and guide their own behavior. Generally speaking, some student party members still have not advanced enough, consciousness is not deep enough.^[1]

1.2 Consolidate the role of the party branch grass-roots fortress needs

Colleges and universities should fully realize that the grass-roots Party organization is the cornerstone of the leadership of the Communist Party of China, therefore, we should increase the construction of the student party branch, this grass-roots Party organization, so as to avoid the phenomenon of the student party branch, and effectively enhance the appeal and influence of the party branch. In the process of building the student party branch, branch members should be based on the political height, constantly permeate “party, party, party” ideology, and on the basis of considering the student learning pressure, organize party members to adhere to the political discipline and rules, adhere to the party spirit and principle, under the guidance of “advanced nature and purity” constantly improve their own political accomplishment and political ability, eventually can consolidate the party branch of basic fortress, show the student party branch’s political responsibility and era mission.

2. The Practical Path of building the College Student Party Branch in the New Era

2.1 Armed theoretical knowledge, to lay a solid ideological foundation

First, to carry out the theoretical knowledge explanation. Grass-roots party branch secretaries should fully realize that Marxist theory has rich thought, profound connotation and careful logic. Marxist theory itself has a significant guiding role and infectious effect. As a college student party member, in order to strengthen their own Marxist and socialist concept, they should carefully study the original work, dig the content, grasp the essence, so as to accurately grasp the profound connotation and development logic of the thought of socialism with Chinese characteristics for the new era, and then constantly improve their own level of Marxist theory. Second, improve the students’ knowledge and theory system. Colleges and universities should try to help students to deepen their understanding of theory, doctrine and methods on the basis of understanding the basic principles of Marxism. In this process, we should focus on stimulating students’ problem awareness, so that they can deepen the depth of learning under the problem orientation.

2.2 Keep good political discipline and build a contingent of cadres

First, strengthen the intensity of daily education management. Colleges and universities should require student party members to participate in party branch activities such as three meetings, organizational life, democratic evaluation and centralized study according to the specific requirements of the regulations on party member management work, so that students can constantly adjust their ideological attitude and psychological state while learning theories systematically. Therefore, the student party branch should carry out one-to-one ideological guidance work for individual party members, so as to improve the effectiveness of daily education and stimulate the vitality and vitality of grass-roots Party organizations. Second, improve the student party member development system. Colleges and universities should try to integrate theoretical study and practice organically, in order to help students deepen the cognition and application of theoretical knowledge, therefore, the student party branch can organize activists to participate in public welfare social activities, to help activists sublimate thought, accumulate practical experience and strengthen the party spirit consciousness. In addition, the assessment mechanism of probationary party members should be further improved, and the theoretical study, daily life and ideological level requirements standards of probationary party members should be detailed and specific, so as to give them a fair and comprehensive evaluation.

3. Epilogue

In short, the new era of university grassroots party organizations should take novel and effective measures to further improve the student party branch construction work, through armed theoretical knowledge, keep political discipline, build the cadre team; strengthen political responsibility, highlight the exemplary role; standardize organizational activities, innovate organizational life, aiming to create a good ideological and political education atmosphere, improve the cohesion and combat effectiveness of the grassroots party organizations, create strong conditions for the subsequent course teaching and student management, and promote the healthy and comprehensive development of students.
