Introduction

In recent years, the rural revitalization strategy has been continuously promoted, and the talent gap has been expanding. How to attract more high-quality talents for rural revitalization has become a public proposition. This paper reviews the literature on related relationship research, hoping to provide reference for further promoting rural revitalization in China.

1. Literature review on talent training to promote rural revitalization

As an important support for rural revitalization, the lack of high-quality, high-level and highly skilled talents makes the road of rural revitalization difficult. Talents are the main driving force for economic and social development. Therefore, Wang Xue believes that application-oriented undergraduate universities are the cradle of cultivating all kinds of modern specialized talents and the main position of cultivating rural revitalization talents. At present, human capital has become an important pillar for the development of the society and universities. Cultivating high-quality and practical talents can help to realize rural revitalization. In the process of serving the rural construction, the training of talents is very important. It is necessary to implement the talent training mechanism from a strategic perspective, and help the development of rural revitalization by cultivating talents and selecting talents.

At present, most scholars are used to conducting detailed demonstration from relevant specific industries when conducting research on rural revitalization and talent training. For example, Wu Yanyu believes that rural e-commerce stands out with the development of online social platforms, rural e-commerce has emerged and made great contributions to the road of rural revitalization. Scientific training of rural e-commerce talents has become an important project of rural development. Relevant personnel should improve the training mode and content of rural e-commerce talents based on the current development of rural e-commerce and the specific situation of comprehensive e-commerce talent training, To contribute to the implementation of the rural revitalization strategy, Relevant personnel should grasp the development characteristics of rural e-commerce, Actively excavate rural resources, Connecting with local governments, enterprises and surrounding schools, In order to make the e-commerce talent training of the soft and hard facilities more perfect; Bijie believes that to promote the revitalization of rural industries, Modern agriculture must be developed, Talent is the key to ensuring agricultural modernization, By accelerating the cultivation of new types of agricultural operators, Encourage all kinds of talents to exert their abilities, talents and talents in the vast world of rural areas, To build a strong talent team for rural revitalization, Form a virtuous circle of talent, land, capital and industry convergence in rural areas, In order to strengthen the talent support for rural revitalization. Zhao Ping pointed out that, from the perspective of management science and tourism science, The implementation of the rural revitalization strategy has given new missions and opportunities for the development of the cultural tourism and sports industry in the new era, The new business form of "cultural tourism+sports" provides new development ideas for the regions with rich cultural, tourism and sports resources to steadily promote the rural revitalization strategy, We will actively play the role of the government, enterprises, and specialized colleges and universities, To build a perfect cooperation mechanism of "local government+enterprises+professional colleges", To cultivate compound innovative talents with professional knowledge and skills of cultural tourism and sports, It is the primary task to promote the sustainable development of the "cultural tourism + sports" industry, It is also a necessary means to promote the realization of rural revitalization goals. Peng Xiaoxia put forward the combination of rural revitalization strategy and the training of agriculture-related legal talents from the direction of law, which is not only reflected in the training of agriculture-related legal talents is conducive to meeting the demand of the rural revitalization strategy for the "three rural" legal talents, but also reflected in the implementation of the rural revitalization strategy to promote the training of agriculture-related legal talents. Country under the strategy of agriculture and forestry colleges agricultural legal talent cultivation training target lag, training mode, unreasonable curriculum, teaching methods to be improved, teachers are weak, from innovation agricultural legal talent training target, improve the agricultural legal talent training mode, science set agricultural law characteristic course system, optimize the teaching methods, improve the level of professional teachers explore the strategy of rural agriculture and forestry universities agricultural legal talent cultivation path, to promote the strategy of rural revitalization and agricultural legal talent training depth fusion, thus boost the realization of rural revitalization of strategic goals.

2. Literature review of labor education and talent training

At the present stage, China is in the critical period of economic transformation, and China's industrial structure and economic form have undergone obvious changes. Colleges and universities need to change the traditional single talent training mode in time, and rely on labor education to cultivate high-quality compound talents needed by modern society. As a new talent training mode based on the traditional apprenticeship system, the labor education mode can not only promote the integrated development of theoretical teaching and practical teaching in colleges and universities, but also provide students with an open and free independent practice platform, and effectively meet the growing demand of talent training in modern society. The School of General Education of Hubei University cultivates their practical operation ability and comprehensive quality through the form of labor education courses. Through the spirit of labor, model worker spirit, craftsman spirit of the spirit of students. At present, the academic community generally conducts relevant research through the cultivation mode and educational spirit as the breakthrough point.

Yong-li liu, cui-ping sun, to its flower, Sun Dongwei thinks that labor knowledge, labor skills, labor spirit, labor concept, labor attitude labor elements throughout the talent training process, the labor education and personnel training mode depth fusion, improve the development needs of the talent training mode, is the objective development of cultivating high quality technical skills personnel. Yin Peng pointed out that must deepen the research and practice of labor education, to improve their understanding of labor education, deepen the labor education, the labor education into the curriculum, build labor education system, establish labor education management mechanism, strengthen labor culture propaganda on campus, to play to the positive role of labor education personnel training, the students to become all-round development of new talents. Starting from the development of professional clusters, Dong Nan believes that cultivating more high-quality talents is the core of the sustainable development of colleges and universities, and the most basic thing is to find a scientific talent training mode and formulate a reasonable talent training plan. In the new era background, the labor education and the construction of professional group are very critical links, which must be incorporated into the talent training mode and deep integration, so as to give full play to their role in talent training. Colleges and universities have their own social attributes, and rural revitalization also requires the joint efforts of various forces of social welfare to develop rapidly. The purpose of labor education in colleges and universities is to cultivate people by virtue and train socialist builders and successors. This requires the integration of public welfare elements, enhancing the ideological and political value of labor education with the public concept of public welfare, realizing high-level labor education for the real environment and innovative learning methods, and promoting the all-round development of people around the cultivation of learners' public welfare personality. Public welfare labor education system construction, should fully draw lessons from the achievements of voluntary public education, around the public personality to improve the traditional mode of labor education, absorb and transform teachers meet the requirements of labor education, curriculum, interesting community, practice base, etc., effective relying on basic curriculum, applied curriculum, frontier dominant curriculum, combining with student community, public service, public double gen practice course, explore new evaluation way, improve the public welfare labor education linkage and radiation mechanism.

3. Conclusion

Through the labor practice course, we realized the spirit of labor, the spirit of model workers and the craftsman spirit; in the investigation of rural revitalization, we found that the rural revitalization talents honored (honored and interviewed) have the above three spirits, and the education of the three spirits implemented in the labor practice course is highly consistent with the characteristics of the rural revitalization talents. This has led us to think that the talents needed for rural revitalization are talents with these three spirits, and labor practice education can promote the spirit of young people and promote the talents needed for rural revitalization (returning to their hometown). This is the conclusion-labor education training talents, talent training to help rural revitalization.
